✓ We were seeing some good declines until about two years ago when methamphetamine hit. That's driving a lot of our armed robberies, theft of vehicles, theft from vehicles, household break and enters and break and enters into businesses." - Former Chief Clive Weighill, SPS

"We do know from our own experience that those issues around drugs and addictions fueled offending is what's our challenge here" - Chief Troy Cooper, SPS

“One third of all homicides in 2017 were the direct result of illicit drugs playing an integral role in the crime. More break-ins, home invasions, and robberies have occurred because of that as well” - Chief Danny Smyth, WPS

“I believe that most of our acquisitive crime in Calgary is fuelled by the current environment we see around addictions and drugs” - Deputy Chief Paul Cook, CPS

"Getting tough on crime won't fix the challenges before us. We need to get tough on poverty, homelessness, racism, and disadvantage . . . Until root causes of violence are properly addressed—poverty, poor housing, disadvantage, etc.—Indigenous people will continue to be vulnerable and disproportionately represented in Canada's justice system. Overall, we cannot lose focus on that."

- Former Chief Clive Weighil,
SPS

"The real call for us, rather than just to say decriminalization, is we need better tools. We need better community supports to deal with these problems. And then we can likely have a more mature discussion about what should be a crime and what isn't a crime."

- Chief Roger Chaffin, CPS
